

If copy protection is implemented in HDTV, Digital TV's or otherwise that will prevent me from taping it and watching it later, I simply won't use those services until the protection is removed. I can't rearrange my life because some suit thinks I can't watch a show when I want. If Viacom is the only monolith to use it I simply won't watch anything viacom airs. Do the right thing for once and strike this down like you should have struck down the decisions to let them buy as many stations as they can afford.
